

Chartering a private aircraft is an exciting and luxurious way to travel. If you have never chartered your own private flight before, it is important to know how the process works in order for the experience to be enjoyable and rewarding. Here are some tips that will help you with chartering your first private flight:

Do your research

Be sure to work with a reputable private aviation company and research your options thoroughly. Look for reviews online in order to find trusted companies that provide safe, reliable, and quality service. You can also ask your friends or colleagues who have chartered private flights before which companies they recommend. If their experience was positive, you are more likely to have good luck yourself!

At the end of the day, you'll want to work with a private aviation company that has been in the industry for a long time. At JetMembership.com, we have been operating for over 12 years, so you can be assured you're in good hands.

Your safety is top priority

Flying on a private plane should always be done with safety in mind. As with any trip that you go on, it is important that you ensure that your pilot and the rest of the crew are equally qualified. This is another reason why picking the right private aviation company is key, as the company you work with should ensure that all planes are properly maintained and in impeccable condition, and that your onboard crew is highly qualified. JetMembership.com ensures that all private flights meet rigorous safety standards, as the safety of our clients is our top priority.

Get help planning your flight

Once you've selected a private aviation company, you'll want to get help planning your first private flight, as it can be a little overwhelming sometimes if you haven't flown private before. You may be surprised to learn that not all private flights are created equal, and there are options for almost any destination or budget. For example, you might not know which airport is closest to your home or which airport is closest to your destination. It can also be difficult to determine what type of plane you'll need to charter, as this can depend on many factors, such as airport restrictions, your budget, the size of your group, availability, personal preferences, and so on. At JetMembership.com, we have a large advisor team that is standing by, ensuring that someone is always available to help. Whether you need help deciding which airports to fly in and out of, or what type of airplane to charter for your first flight, we're happy to help you explore your options.

Explore pricing options

The cost of chartering a private flight can vary depending on many factors. If you need help determining the cost of a private flight, consult with the private aviation company you're working with for a personalized price quote. At JetMembership.com, we also offer a pricing model that is revolutionary to the industry and gives our members the opportunity to save significantly on the cost of their private flights. For a flat membership fee, our members receive exclusive pricing and wholesale prices for all of their flights while they're members. Normally when chartering a private flight, customers pay undisclosed commissions and other hidden fees, which are all rolled into their flight quote. JetMembership.com offers complete transparency with their exclusive membership pricing.

Plan for your departure

It is important to think about how you will get to and from the airport on your departure day. You want to arrive at the airport shortly before takeoff, but unlike a commercial flight, you don't need to arrive too early. When it comes time to depart, be sure you know when and where you need to go in order to get on the plane. You want to be ready ahead of time so there are no surprises. If you charter a flight with us, you can be assured that you'll receive all the necessary details for your itinerary. For a seamless travel experience, be sure to ask us about our ground transportation services.

Relax and enjoy your flight

Once you board and settle in, all that's left is to enjoy the flight and know that everything will be taken care of for you. From customized food and beverage options to personalized entertainment and plenty of space to unwind, there is no better way to travel. You'll never want to go back to flying commercial again!
